

DIED IN FIGHTING HARVEST FIELD FIRE.

Charles Whitlock, in Trying to Stop the Advance of Flames in His Uncle's Field, is Fatally Burned

The funeral party arrived, Monday morning, bringing the body of Charles Whitlock, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Whitlock who was fatally burned at Plains, Kans., Thursday afternoon, July 24.

Funeral services will be held at the Monett Baptist church at 6:30 o'clock this (Monday) evening and interment will be made in the Odd Fellows cemetery. Rev. A. P. Stone, of Neosho, will have charge of the services, and will be assisted by Rev. Luther Carlin. Members of his graduating class will act as pall bearers.

Particulars of the young man's death are as follows:

The young man was eating his dinner at the home of his uncle on Thursday, when a sudden call of fire in the wheat fields was heard. Without waiting for the cars or for anyone else, Charles impulsively ran for half a mile into the flames without realizing what he had done. He grabbed a plow to furrow the ground to prevent the spread of the fire.

When he became exhausted he tied a handkerchief around his mouth and jumped from the plow into a stack of wheat shocks, the flames of which were higher than his head, but he roused himself once more and walked out of the fire to some men who tore his burning clothing off and rushed him to the home of his uncle, George England. Three doctors attended him and he was conscious until midnight. He died at 6:30 o'clock the next morning.

No one else was injured in the fire. It is supposed that his death was caused by the effects of the smoke and flames in his throat and lungs, rather than from the external burns.

Charles Whitlock was twenty years old. He attended the Agriculture College of Mississippi last year, and to gain more practical use of his knowledge of farming he went to the harvest.

He was a very fine musician and was a member of the Musicians Union of Joplin. He also played in the college band. He was a graduate of the Neosho high school and served several months in the S. A. T. C. stationed at the Mississippi College.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. L. E. Lines and Mrs. J. B. Cole of Joplin, Miss Jessie Whitlock, of Monett; two brothers, O. O. Whitlock, of Wilmington, N. C. and Dr. Whitlock of Monett, and both parents.
